MARRIAGE LICENSE OFFICE BREAKS ALL RECORDS.

All records were broken yesterday in the marriage license office in the new City Hall. Clerk Filley and Deputy Leonhardt, After the ceremony was performed they went home and informed their relatives. Hall. Clerk Filley and Deputy Leonhardt, with the assistance of Deputy Recorder Henry Hahn, issued 106 licenses, seven more than were issued in 1998, the banner coasion in the annals of the office.

Two years ago ninety-eight licenses were issued, but last year there were less on Thanksgiving Wednesday, because notices were published in the papers advising souples to call early in the week. With the object of distributing the rush again over the several days preceding Thanksgiving Day, the same policy was resorted to this rear. Nevertheless, the officials had crowds of visitors from early morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The couple to have the honor of being the one-hundredth was Charles A. Matthbw8 of No. 4234A Finney avenue and Miss ina C. Smith of No. 1017 South Tweifth street. The license was issued to them at ive minutes before 4 o'clock. They stated hat they had been friends for years and heir wedding was not entirely unexpected, out that the event would be a surprise to Clerk Augustus Filley anticipated that all past records would be surpassed, and he resolved to celebrate the occurrence in a fit manner. This he did by purchasing nine dozen white carnations, which he gave to the young people who came.

There was a throng present all day, but particularly in the afternoon. While young and old waited for the documents in the office. Deacon Pearce, a negro minister, was bustly engaged in the inner office marrying some of his people. At one time he had a party of six there, consisting of the bride and bridegroom and a number of their friends.

It was a happy crowd that assembled in the office from hour to hour, not a face visible that did not betray a smile or the trace of a smile. Boutonnieres were plentiful and pretty brides-elect wore their favorite flowers. Messrs, Filley and Leonhardt observed the occasion by wearing red carnations, and their desk was decorated with white carnations and ferns,

RECOVERS THE POWER OF SPEECH AFTER BEING MUTE SIXTEEN MONTHS.

To-day is truly a day of thanksgiving in he family of Mrs. Mary Goss of No. 4688 laston avenue.

Mrs. Goss, who for nearly sixteen months as been deprived of the power of speech, as had her voice restored.

While there is nothing miraculous in the estoration of Mrs. Goss's voice, viewed rom a medical standpoint, it is sufficiently emarkable to the lay mind to cause it to the absorbing topic of conversation mong her neighbors, and a source of gratection to her friends and relatives.

Modern surgery is responsible for the estoration of Mrs. Goss's voice, even as it was indirectly the cause of her losing it temporarily.

estoration of Mrs. Goss's voice, even as it was indirectly the cause of her losing temporarily.

Sixteen months ago Mrs. Goss was roubled with a severe affection of the lefting, which refused to yield to ordinary nedical treatment, and a surgical operation was successful, but the wound in he side did not heal as perfectly as exected, and the sensitive glands under the rm pit became affected, and the affection ras communicated to the glands of the hroat. These, in turn, affected the muscles ontrolling the vocal organs, and one of hese, becoming displaced, caused the parient to gradually lose all power of articulation. Mrs. Goss, a few days after the operation to relieve her lung, noticed her oice gradually becoming weaker. For a nonth she was able to speak only in a rhisper, and finally she lost all power of peech and was unable to actually and the family physician was unable to ac-

INITIAL BALL OF THE ST, LOUIS CLUB.

First Function of Season Given by the Fashionable Organization a Brilliant Success.

DECORATIONS ON GRAND SCALE.

Members With Their Wives and Invited Guests Made Up a Notable Gathering.

The St. Louis Club's season of festivities was opened auspiciously last night with a ball at the clubbouse on Lindell boulevard which was attended by nearly the full membership of the club. Those members who did not attend were either away from the city or prevented from coming by illness or recent deaths in the family. The clubhouse was elaborately and tastefully decorated for the occasion with a profusion of chrysanthemums, paims, potted plants and Southern smilax. Immediately inside the main entrance to the clubhous there were variegated rows of chrysanthe mums and plants, and festooned from the celling were streamers of Southern smilax. The stairway leading to the ballroom presented a pretty appearance and the landing at the head of the stairs was a bower of green. The banisters at the side of the stairs were entwined with Southern smilax, and on each step were chrysantheniums to harmon-ize with the color scheme of the decorations. Before the ball was commenced the mustcians were stationed on the landing at the head of the stairs, where they rendered a programme of concert music. Later they were stationed in the ballroom. The ball-room, like the rest of the clubhouse, was decorated, principally with smilax, with here and there clusters of chrysanthemums to vary the monotony of the green.

The costumes of the ladies were smart and becoming to their wearers, and gay colors predominated. The following attended the ball:

MOTORMAN JUST TOOK TIME TO WED.

Immediately After Charles Silvey and Linnie Brown Were Married He Returned to Work.

Charles Silvey, a motorman on the Tower Grove line of the Transit Company, took an hour off yesterday, and married the gir who had come all the way from Kansas to become his Thanksgiving Day bride. Then he went back to his "run," which kept him on his car until midnight. Silvey's bride was Miss Linnie Brown daughter of a retired farmer, living at Gir daughter of a retired farmer, living at Girard, Kas, They met a year ago at Webb City, Mo., where Silvey and Miss Brown's brothers were engaged in mining. Last March Silvey came to St. Louis, and went to work as a motorman, and soon Miss Brown returned to Girard. They corresponded, and became engaged.

Two weeks ago William Brown, the young lady's father, decided that he would come to St. Louis and get acquainted with hm prospective son-in-law, whom he had never met, before he gave his consent to the marriage. He came, stayed several days with Silvey, and went back home satisfied.

Silvey and Miss Brown were married by Justice Walker yesterday morning, after which they installed themselves at No. 1332 Chouteau avenue. The bride prides herself on the fact that she was for two years engaged in newspaper work in Kansas.

GOT DIVORCE TUESDAY; MARRIED WEDNESDAY.

Mrs. Emma R. Silva, Former Wife of Louis J. Silva, Weds Daniel W. Saylor, an Old Sweetheart-Ceremony Performed at the House of a Friend.

MRS. DANIEL W. SAYLOR,

Formerly Mrs. Louis J. Silva. She obtained a divorce from Mr. Silva Tuesday and married Mr. Saylor yesterday.

A decree of divorce was entered on the records of the Circuit Court of St. Louis Tuesday in favor of Emma R. Silva in her suit against Louis J. Silva. Yesterday afternoon a marriage license was issued to Emma R. Silva and Daniel W. Saylor, and at 9 o'clock last night Mrs. Silva and Mr. Saylor were married at the residence of Charles Pickles, No. 433 Cook avenue.

Thus ends a romance that began in childhood, and which for one of the interested persons at least was filled with interruptions calculated to try the steel of the most faithful heart.

Mr. Saylor is president of the Saylor-Tutemeler Collecting and Adjusting Company. His father, Oliver P. Saylor, was a member of the old firm of Ludlow & Saylor and one of the most prominent business men of the did firm of Ludlow & Saylor and one of the most prominent business men of the courtship was expected by all their friends to culminate in a weidling.

One day Louis J. Silva came along, He was handsome, dashing and generous almost to profilicacy. He had soon won the heart of Saylor's sweetheart, and on May 39, 182, the couple were married. They went to live in a handsome home in Cabanne. Silva at the time was employed in a confidential capacity by the Rainwater-Boogher Hat Company of St. Louis. One day it was discovered that the firm had been robbed of Doctor Johnson made a superficial examination of Mrs. Duffy's physical condition, pronounced her case not serious, and told her to call again Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Duffy wept, and pleaded to be sent to the City Hospital. Doctor Johnson de-clared that he could not issue a permit, whereupon Mrs. Duffy took from her dress

HUMANE POLICY IS TO BE ABANDONED.

Slaughter of Filipinos Wherever American Troops Are Attacked Is Ordered.

NEW POLICY IN PHILIPPINES.

Harsh Measures Decided Upon in Hope of Stamping Out the Ipsurrection Before Next May.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, Nov. 23.-The Washington correspondent of the Journal sends the following dispatch to his paper:

"Slaughter of Filipinos wherever there is an attack on the American troops or the 'sniping' of American soldiers is the programme that has been ordered by the War Department. Army officers long ago urged that these tactics be employed, but the fear of their effect upon the election prevented them from being carried into effect. Now the orders have been issued and the people of the Island are to be taught what war is "The policy of the British in South Africa is to be copied, and the punishment of villages and settlements that give shelter to the insurgents is to be so effective that the War Department believes it will be an easy matter to stamp out all signs of the present insurrection.

"Army officers who have served in the Philippines point out that the natives are known in the field as 'amigos' when the Americans are close at hand, and as soon as they have passed take up their guns and pursue, lagging far enough behind to 'snipe' the soldiers, and frequently gather in suffipursue, lagging far enough behind to 'snipe' the soldiers, and frequently gather in sufficient numbers to create dangerous ambush. Under the new policy, whenever anything of this kind is done, the whole section is to be scoured, the men killed, huts burned and the women and children chased away. The innocent may thus be punished for the acts of the guilty, because of the impossibility of separating the noncombatants from those who are fighting. Through the fear thus instilled in the minds of the people, it is believed by army officers that the natives, in self-protection, will refuse to give the 'insurrectors' food and shelter and thus make it impossible for the rebels to continue their depredations and maintain their attacks upon the American troops.

Army officials have for a year urged that this be done, but prior to the election the administration feared to give the order.

The other features of the campaign are: An increase of the garrisons at important points, not so much for defensive operations as for rendezvous for the troops sufficiently strong to enable the commanders to send out companies to keep the Filipinos on the run.

The stationing of troops in every Province and not merely in those sections where there has been fighting.

No withdrawal of any regiment until this campaign has been concluded. That will give the General in command about 70,000 men for land operations.

The marine corps to relieve MacArthur's forces at several of the more important points, releasing an equal number of seasoned troops for offensive operations in the interior.

soned troops for offensive operations in the interior.

The navy to patrol the coast line more closely, and especially of Luzon, and prevent filibustering and the entry of arms and ammunition that are known to be supplied by the Fllipino junta at Hong-Kong. The navy to co-operate more closely with the land lorces in the transportation of soldiers from one portion of the archipelago to another. General MacArthur's plans have been agreed to, and Rear Admiral Frederick Rogers has been ordered to duty in the Asiatic Station.

President McKinley has directed that the rebellion must be suppressed by the beginning of next May, when the rainy season again comes upon the island.

plaints heard against the recent orders for the enforcement of the rule, it is highly probable that General Manager Baumhoff will never have a moment's peace until the "no-smoking-in-the-owl-cars" rule is allowed to lapse into the innocuous desuctude which it had enjoyed so long. A regular patron of the owl cars said yesterday: "I work at night and have been riding on owl cars for five years in St. Louis. Never before in my recollection have I seen the time when I couldn't smoke in them. Furthermore, I don't see the sense in such a regulation. The people who patronize owl cars are nearly all men, and men who a regulation. The people who patronize owl cars are nearly all men, and men who smoke. What few women get on the cars, as a rule, don't care whether smoking is permitted or not. I suppose there are a few cranks who are so superciliously exacting about their health that they imagine the inhalation of a few whiffs of smoke is going to send them untimely to their graves. There can be no doubt that such people are in a very small minority among the patrons, and is it fair to inconvenience everybody else for the sake of these few? I sincerely trust that the company will realize the injustice of such a rule and withdraw it right away."

General Manager Baumhoff, speaking of the matter, said: "There has always been a rule against smoking in the owl cars, as well as the others, but it was not strictly enforced because there were no complaints against smoking. Recently a number of requests have come to the company to forbid the smoking. These complaints are based upon the ground that the air in the car is thus vitiated, and also that a car filled with smoke is not a fit place for ladies. After carefully considering these objections, we decided to issue orders for the strict enforcement of the rule. On some of the lines we have the vestibule cars, one compartment of which is reserved for smokers. As soon as possible we will have only the vestibule cars for the owl-car service."

TEACHES CHARITY IN SCHOOLS. Clayton Instructor Has Pupils Aid

Worthy Poor.

Practical charity in the school, as well as at home, is taught by Miss Marie L. Turner, principal of the Clayton public school. Miss Turner thaugurated her scheme yesteriay at a Thanksgiving entertainment given by her pupils. She instructed those in the upper grades that, while they had much to be thankful for, there were others who were perhaps not so fortunate, and that it would be well to lighten their hearts by presenting to them a substantial Thanksgiving dinner, or at least the means to provide the meal. Consequently, before the audience dispersed, the pupils took up a collection for this purpose, and a neat sum was realized. Last night the pupils resolved themselves into committees and distributed their funds among the worthy poor of Clayton and the surrounding country.
